

This report compares your career preferences to ACCOUNTANT.

The suitability rating indicates the probability you will enjoy (and succeed) in this career. The overall % score indicates the percentage your preferences match the requirements of this career.

Please realize that this is only a general reflection of the behavioral requirements. There could be many specific positions within this career that require significantly different behaviors. Therefore, this score is only intended to be a guideline to be used for further inquiry and reflection. In addition, it does not take into consideration your current level of education and experience related to this career.

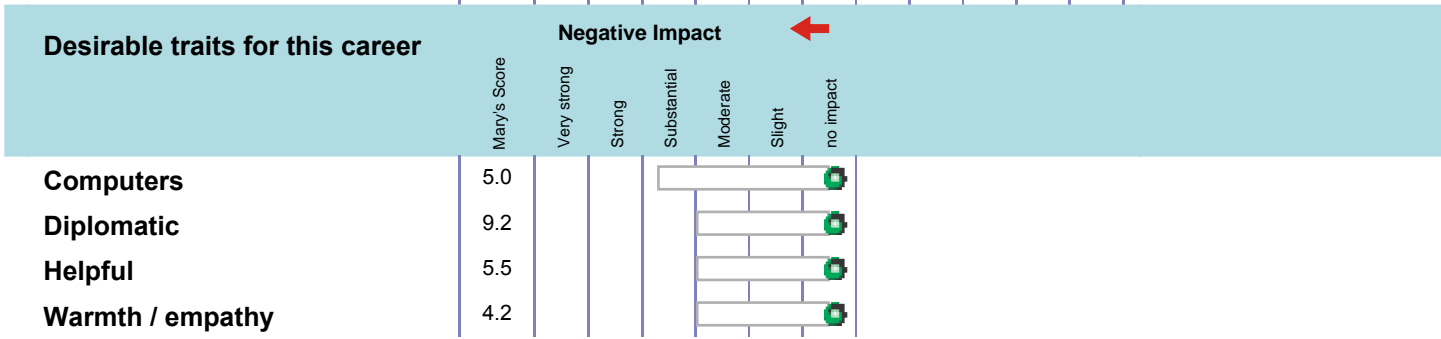

The behavioral requirements for this career are listed in three categories: Essential Traits, Desirable Traits, and Traits to Avoid. The Essential Traits relate to behaviors that are frequently required for the career. The Important Traits are behaviors that are required less frequently. The Traits to Avoid are behaviors that could have a negative impact on performance and satisfaction for this career.

The score adjacent to each trait name is your level of preference related to that behavior (on a scale of 0-10). The rectangular boxes to the right of each trait name reflect the POTENTIAL impact the behavioral requirements could have on your career satisfaction (either positive or negative). The colored area within the box reflects the impact YOUR preference (related to that behavior) will probably have on satisfaction for this career.

The second section of this report provides narrative descriptions of your suitability for this career.
